EXPERIENCE

Throughout his 25 year career, Chris has assisted companies from a diverse number of industries implement and refine their Health, Safety and Environmental Management Systems to Best Practice standards.

For the past eight years, Chris has worked extensively in the oil and gas, and energy industries and with their associated heavy industry vendors and suppliers. Clients include AGL, AGR, BHP, BP, Caltex Australia, Conoco Phillips, ExxonMobil, Methanex, Origin Energy, Shell Australia, Santos, Transfield Services and Woodside Petroleum.

Chris' initial involvement in the oil and gas industry centred around his role as a Specialist Project Manager within Shell Refining Australia, after which he held the role of Projects Manager for a high profile contractor performing specialist project work for the majority of oil and gas organisations throughout Australia. Both of these roles not only involved the project management of multi-contractors, suppliers and vendors to deliver a specified scope of work, but also reviewing and implementing health and safety management systems and elements across a range of organisational cultures.

For the past four years, Chris has assumed project specific roles with a number of oil and gas, and energy clients to coordinate the HSE aspects of their maintenance shutdowns, facilitate ERP drills, completed numerous 2nd party OHS and Quality Management System audits, developing and initiating implementation of a HSE Management Systems compliant with the requirements of AS4801 and developing and facilitating a range of training non-accredited and facilitate nationally accredited training courses.

Prior to this Chris worked for a number of years with Pivot Fertilisers providing Project & Contract Management services and HSE Auditing and Consulting Services as part of the construction of 32 facilities throughout Australia. In addition to this, Chris has many years of experience in the general Construction Industry.

His passionate commitment to HSE and training ensures that his approach to training removes the complexities of the subject matter through practical workplace examples which ensures participants get maximum value and information from their interaction. Chris has run numerous training sessions for company management and supervisory personnel on HSE Duty of Care, Compliance issues and Project Management.

He has developed and assisted numerous companies attain ISO 9001 certification (1994 and 2000 versions), and has conducted second party compliance HSE and Quality Management Systems audits for clients and their contractors (if required).
